

Rich content smoke test

This paragraph wraps mixed inline runs as one line box, including italic text, regular text, and a linked run that can wrap. The link annotation follows only the linked fragments.

Long tokens still hard-break inside the paragraph:
supercalifragilisticexpialidocious-supercalifragilisticexpialidocious.

This inset note is visually grouped by a narrower measure, a changed typeface, and a containing panel. Semantic reflow should keep these lines together without guessing whether the block is a quotation, abstract, sidebar, or figure.

Normal body text resumes at the outer measure after the inset block.

| Plan comparison                                                               |       |          |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------|----------|
| Feature                                                                       | Basic | Pro      |
| Inline text in a cell with bold and link               | Yes   | Yes      |
| Priority review                                                               | No    | Included |
| Footer cell spans all columns and keeps mixed inline content together. |       |          |